

Marcom Watson is an Australian company formed in 1965 to provide product and support services to commercial and professional users of radio communications and maritime electronics.

Today our company represents some of the world leaders in these fields. We market, integrate and support a wide range of maritime electronics including :-

- Radio communications
- Navigation
- Hydrographic Survey
- Helideck monitoring systems
- Met sensing and peripheral equipment.
- Custom Software & Integration

We believe our continued success can be attributed to the quality of products we choose to sell, and the company's ability to deliver end user solutions based on the implementation of leading edge technology.

Marcom Watson offer full system integration with other end user systems. We can provide custom software written in house to provide the bridge between different systems and create flexible and powerful solutions that provide the complete turnkey solution.
